

Diana Rhoten, is the Director of the Knowledge Institutions and Innovation Program at the Social Science Research Council. Her primary research focuses on the social and technical conditions of interdisciplinary research and the practices and processes of integrative education and training. Her most recent publications can be found in Science and the Social Science Research Council Items & Issues. In addition to publishing on these topics, Dr. Rhoten works with various organizations on the design, implementation and assessment of new forms of collaborative research, work and training. For her work in this area, Dr. Rhoten has been selected as a Sigma Xi Distinguished Lecturer (July 2005–June 2007). Her second line of research focuses on local interpretations and implementations of global social and science policies in North and South America. Related publications can be found in the Journal of Education Policy, Comparative Education Review, The New Accountability: High Schools and High-Stakes Testing, and Las Reformas Educativas en la Década de 1990: Un Estudio Comparado de Argentina, Chile y Uruguay. Previously, Dr. Rhoten served as an Assistant Professor at Stanford University and as Research Director of the Hybrid Vigor Institute. Dr. Rhoten has a Ph.D. in Social Sciences, Policy, and Educational Practice and an M.A. from Stanford University, as well as an M.Ed. in International Development Education from Harvard University.